

Endoscopic Ultrasound (EUS) Workshop
with hands-on training, Istanbul
December 16 - 18, 2011

EUS
Workshop

Dear colleagues,

Endoscopic ultrasound (EUS) is an emerging technique in Gastroenterology. Its diagnostic and therapeutic potential revolutionized the capability of the endoscopist in approaching of the gut lumen and its surroundings. Lesions arising from the deeper layers of gut wall are no longer out of reach. We can examine a major part of the mediastinum and take biopsies. We can define the lesions in pancreas, biliary tract, left adrenal better than all other imaging techniques and perform biopsies as well. EUS is also an invaluable technique in the evaluation of rectum and perirectal area.

Therapeutic uses of EUS include cysto-gastrostomy, abscess drainage, puncture and stenting of intrahepatic bile ducts and pancreatic duct.

The Gastrointestinal Endoscopy department of Bezm-i Alem University Hospital, is a tertiary referral center, specialized in EUS in which 5-10 cases of EUS per day are performed. Sophisticated therapeutic interventions are daily routines.

We have organized more than ten EUS workshops with live-demonstrations over the last 5 years.

The workshop in Istanbul will offer a unique opportunity for not only learning this distinguished technique but also offer the opportunity of hands-on training which was, hitherto, non-existent in these kind of EUS workshops. We would be delighted to have you with us in this exciting event.
